

Autumn/Winter 2015-2016 | Redefined

Knowing our roots keeps us connected with our ancestral heritage, but the busy city life will challenge us sometimes, making us lose our sense of uniqueness and individuality. In search to redefine these values, artists and designers are reaching to different cultures looking for inspiration. We see happy jungle motives used in modern urban art, the beauty of traditional African prints mixed with colorful graffiti, all creating one interesting upbeat new style. Photoreal images of modern cityscapes, flowing into pictures of African animals, cubist designs, accessorized with tribal elements, create one jubilant kaleidoscope of color. Vibrant fragments, which at the end of the day, come together in perfect fusion.

“Redefined” Color Combinations

Rusty orange, burgundy red and goldenrod yellow, with teal blue, forest green and deep lavender, are accentuated with bold pops of cobalt blue and acid yellow, setting the stage for new color dynamics. Jungle and safari motives open fresh alternatives in interpreting the traditional fall palettes.
